All tanked up

THESE mighty new tanks will give Our Boys awesome firepower in the world's trouble spots. The two monsters – called Trojans and Titans – weigh more than 60 tons each but can still hurtle along at 35mph. The MOD is to take delivery of 66 of them in a £250million deal with BAE Systems, and officials say they can demolish "virtually every obstacle in the battlefield".

Titans can lay a bridge over an 85ft gap in two minutes, while Trojans plough up minefields.

Brigadier Chris Sexton, of the Royal Engineers, said: "This is a step-change in our capability."

NEWSPAPERS SUPPORT RECYCLING

TROUT OF ORDER

'Fasting made me kill a swan'

A MUSLIM man killed a swan by stabbing it in the neck – because he was hungry during his Ramadan fast. When police arrived at Llandudno's West Shore boating pool, they found Shamshu Miah, above, with feathers in his beard and blood on his face. Miah, 52, of Llandudno, appeared before the town's magistrates yesterday wearing a dark blue gown and was remanded for a further three weeks. Psychiatric and presentence reports have been ordered. Solicitor Louise Botham told the court that a psychiatrist will see him in a week's time. Miah has admitted possessing a kitchen knife in public and intentionally killing a wild bird. At a previous hearing, magistrates were told he had been seen acting suspiciously at the boating pool. Ms Botham said there had been a deterioration in his mental health because of his fasting. "It is not normal behaviour on his part," she said. Miah was further remanded in custody until November 22.

Cops trawl rivers to net fish-guzzling migrants

A SQUAD of river police has been set up to hook immigrants who are feeding on our fish.

While Brit anglers throw back their catches, eastern Europeans are snaring them to get free grub.

Now the Environment Agency has set up a 150-strong squad of enforcement officers after some culprits were seen raiding rivers with trawler-style nets.

The "high-impact fisheries enforcement officers" will don stab vests, batons and handcuffs to patrol the country's waterways – at a cost to taxpayers of up to £3million a year.

In South Yorkshire the Fitzwilliam Canal near Rotherham and waterways in Barnsley have regularly been targeted by immigrants.

Angler Martin Read said: "It is a problem which is spreading all over the country since the influx of east Europeans. Back home if they want to eat fish

by JERRY LAWTON

they simply go and catch it. Here they find plenty of canals but the rules are different and netting is illegal.

"They are catching fish to eat because it is cheap and it is what they are used to doing back home."

Angling Times editor Richard Lee said: "It has arisen because a lot of eastern Europeans do not fish for pleasure but for the table."

Flood

"We seem to be among the few who don't keep their catch."

"There is a lot of frustration because it seems little can be done and there is a fear people will take things into their own hands."

"If these people were made aware of the rules most would toe the line. It is a matter of education."

In the UK anyone fishing fresh waters needs a licence. Anglers can only use a rod and line and are restricted on the number of fish they can take away.

But the illegal use of nets has rocketed since large numbers of immigrants began to flood into Britain.

The foreigners cannot understand the British practice of returning the catch to the water.

Angling clubs who pay to stock their waters are furious at the way their fish keep disappearing.

An Environment Agency spokesman said: "This is something which has been raised nationally and we are taking measures to educate people."

"In addition to water bailiffs, we have introduced enforcement officers who are equipped to tackle serious fishing crime."

"They will also be used in regions that have high rod licence evasion levels or a history of hostility."

"We are also stepping up education about fisheries law."

DEMO 'HATE CALL'

A BRITISH Muslim called for the beheadings of enemies of Islam and the death of British soldiers, a court heard.

Mizanur Rahman attended a protest against Danish cartoons portraying Mohammed in London in February, an Old Bailey jury was told. Rahman allegedly said: "Oh Allah, we want to see another 9/11 in Iraq... in Denmark... in Spain... in France... all over Europe."

"Oh Allah, destroy all of them."

Rahman, 23, of Palmers Green, north London, denies inciting murder. The trial continues.

Hollyoaks star takes on Queen of Tart

GEMMA'S THE SEXIEST LINK

CUDDLES: Gemma hugs Moyles

HOLLYOAKS babe Gemma Atkinson is bracing herself for a beauty-versus-the-beast TV battle with fearsome Anne Robinson. The bubbly blonde will come face-to-face with ice-cool Anne on a Weakest Link celebrity Christmas special.

She has bravely agreed to put her general knowledge to the test on the hit BBC quiz, but is frightened brainbox Anne, 62, will dismiss her as a bimbo and subject her to a terrible tongue-lashing.

The 22-year-old landed her role in Hollyoaks when she was still at school and skipped most of her exams because of filming. Gemma, who plays Lisa Hunter in spin-off show The City, told Radio 1 breakfast show host Chris Moyles, 32, she was far from confident of making a good impression on the show.

She said: "I did Hollyoaks when I was in the fifth year and I didn't have time to take a lot of exams. When I got a year's contract I just gave up completely."

Luckily for Gemma, who is dating 28-year-old Charlton striker Marcus Bent, she's quite good at figures – particularly when it comes to her 34D assets.

She revealed she got a boob job after they started to droop, but insisted she did not have them made bigger. She added: "I wasn't a small-breasted girl and then I lost a shed load of weight. Then I became a saggy-breasted girl."

"So I just filled the excess skin back up."

The Bury-born beauty is now planning to show her new assets off in her steamy 2007 calendar.

She said: "I have done a range of photos for the classy calendar buyers – and some for the perky calendar buyers."

NAKED: Daniel Radcliffe

Harry's horsing around

■ by NADINE LINGE

HERE'S Harry Potter dabbling with the Dark Arts in his new stage play.

Daniel Radcliffe plays a psychotic stable boy who has a sexual fixation with horses in the new production of masterpiece Equus.

And the first poster from the play has Dan, 17, with a naked top turning into a stallion.

The star also strips for the role as Alan Strang in his West End debut which opens at London's Gielgud Theatre in February.

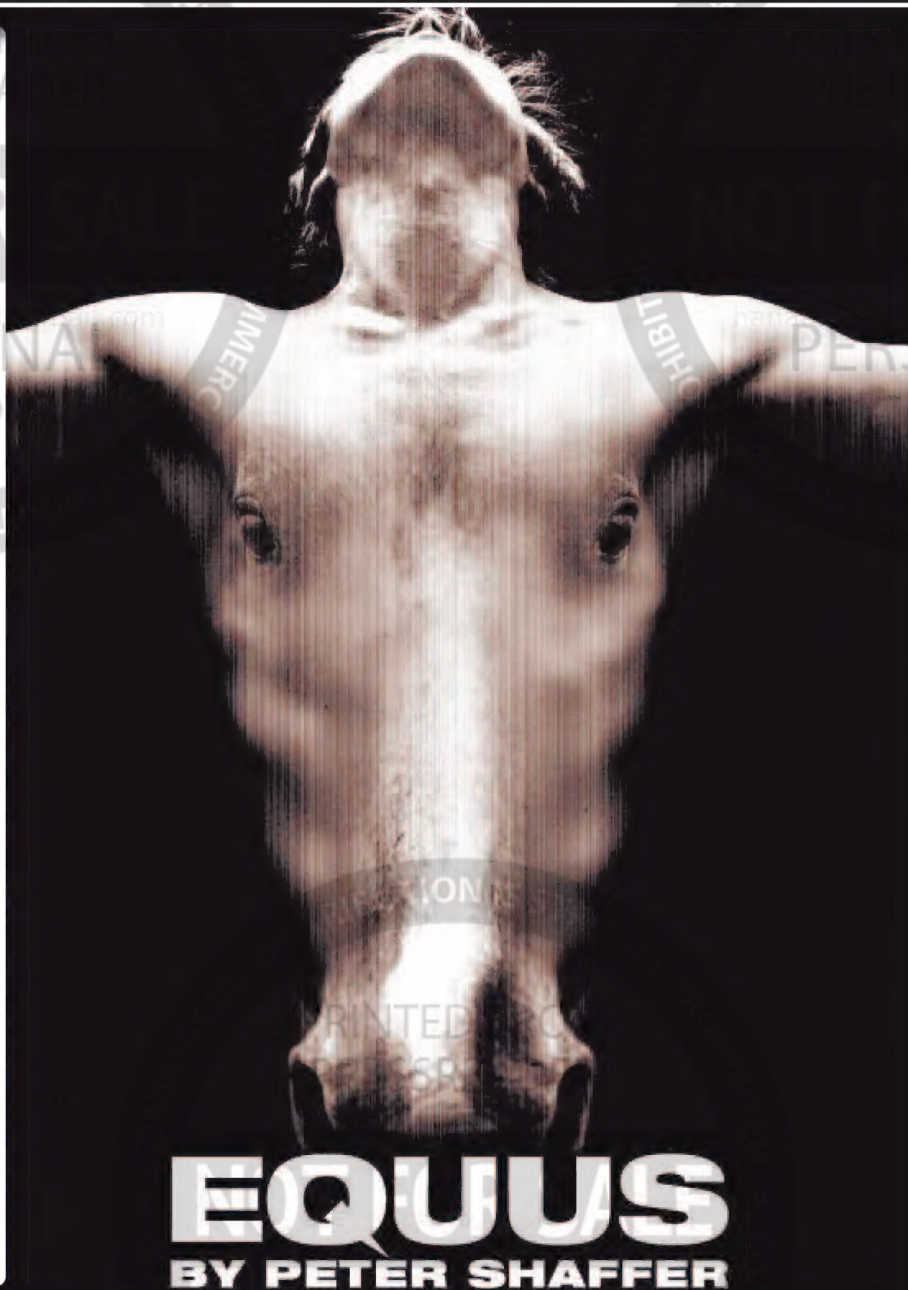

In shocking scenes he has to simulate sexual pleasure while riding a horse in the nude.

But he won't be able to completely escape his role as Harry when he takes to the stage - Richard Griffiths, 59, who plays his hated Uncle Vernon in the films, stars as the boy's shrink.

Daniel said: "As a young actor, the opportunity to perform in the award-winning play Equus is a dream come true. "Alan Strang is an incredibly complex and dark character and I'm honoured to be entrusted with playing him."

Daniel is currently filming the fifth wizard film, Harry Potter and the Order of the Phoenix.

It sees Harry facing expulsion from Hogwarts, finally getting to snog the object of his affection Cho Chang (Katie Leung, 19) and facing his toughest battle yet with Lord Voldemort (Ralph Fiennes, 43).

Holiday deaths charge

■ by JERRY LAWTON

THE Thomas Cook rep who declared safe the Corfu hotel where two children were gassed to death faces 19 years in jail.

Greek police say the UK-based travel giants were partly to blame.

A British coroner yesterday ruled Christianne Shepherd, seven, and her six-year-old brother Robert died from carbon monoxide poisoning in their holiday bungalow.

Injuries

Meanwhile, Corfu police were charging the Thomas Cook worker who inspected the hotel.

Last night a Greek prosecutor filed the involuntary serial manslaughter charges against Thomas Cook and five other firms and individuals.

The defendants also face charges of attempted involuntary serial manslaughter, causing serious physical injuries and a building violation.

The children's father Neil, 38, and his partner Ruth Beatson, 27, were last night being treated in hospital near their home in Wakefield, West Yorks.

■ DUREX is looking for 10,000 men to test new Pleasuremax condoms. The firm wants energetic sorts open to new ideas. A spokesman said: "We're looking for men who want to give their women maximum pleasure. It's a hard job, but someone has to do it."

The road to hell...

BUNGLING workmen have left drivers on the road to nowhere after creating a £1million roundabout with no exit.

The council clots put up "No left turn" signs before EVERY exit on the island.

Law abiding drivers who follow the instructions end up going round in circles.

Locals are ignoring the signs, but visitors and learner drivers have been left tearing their hair out.

Motorist Michelle Hallmark, 25, said: "This is absolutely ridiculous. If it wasn't so dangerous, I'd find it funny."

Red-faced officials in Coventry last night promised to take them down.

GIRL A WEEK FORCED INTO SEX SLAVERY

A GANG that lured scores of women to Britain in a £2million vice racket were jailed yesterday.

Mastermind Thanh Hue Thi, 44, and his 23-year-old wife Mee Yoke Pang, helped by sidekicks, recruited one Malaysian woman a week for two years.

They rented luxury property in Birmingham and in upmarket Mayfair, St John's Wood and

■ by ELIZABETH JAMES

Notting Hill, London, where the prostitutes worked 10-hour shifts.

Each brothel - advertised in Chinese newspapers and on business cards - was visited by up to 80 customers a day.

Each woman would service about 50 customers a week.

The women earned £70 for half an hour but £40 of that was taken by the traffickers, prosecutor Brendan Kelly told London's Southwark Crown Court. Thi used his part of the proceeds to fund his £3,600-a-day gambling habit.

Raided

The racket was broken after one prostitute told police about it during a day out in London.

After a five-month surveillance operation, vice squad officers raided the brothels in May.

Thi admitted conspiracy to traffic women into the UK for sexual exploitation and was sentenced to five years. Five other men pleaded guilty to the same offence and received sentences varying from 12 months to three-and-a-half years.

Thi and four of the other men will be deported back to Malaysia or Hong Kong on their release.

Thi's wife was said to be "gravely ill" in hospital and the court accepted she was unfit for sentence.

SHAKEN:

phone calls
and texts

Text pest stalked me as I married my Ashley

GIRLS ALOUD CHERYL'S FEARS

EXCLUSIVE

by KIM DAWSON and IAIN BURCHELL

GIRLS Aloud beauty Cheryl Cole has revealed sinister phone stalkers even targeted her on her wedding day.

The pop babe, 23, told how she has been bombarded with sexually explicit calls and texts after a call centre worker gave out her details.

Cheryl yesterday revealed how she was horrified to get a chilling text as she prepared to walk down the aisle with England football star Ashley Cole.

Twisted

The cowardly sender seemed to know exactly what she was doing by taunting: "Hi, you must be busy."

Terrified Cheryl yesterday told of her fury at the sick attempt to ruin her fairytale summer wedding at posh Wrotham Park in Barnet, Herts. The creepy text came through just as she was putting on her stunning £10,000 Roberto Cavalli satin wedding dress.

She said: "I had one on my wedding day. How rude and inconsiderate is that? They blatantly knew I was getting married."

Desperate Cheryl has now changed her phone number four times.

And she's also switched mobile phone networks to escape calls from her twisted tormenters.

But she has been left so badly shaken that she now refuses to answer any calls she gets from withheld numbers.

Cheryl revealed her ordeal to the Daily Star yesterday at a Girls Aloud photoshoot in Tufnell Park, north London. She was clearly startled to receive a call from an unidentified number as she spoke to us.

Looking at her phone, she told Hot's Kim Dawson: "There you go, private number."

Cheryl believes the call centre worker shared her personal details with pals who have since bombarded her with calls and texts - including hurtful insults about husband Ashley, 25.

She also called in police after being constantly plagued and is furious that her number got out.

TERROR: Nicola was also stalked, and inset, Cheryl's wedding in OK!

The chart-topper slammed her former phone operator, saying: "Their security is s."

Cheryl thinks bandmate Nicola Roberts' number has been given out as she has had nuisance calls.

Scare

She said: "We've been told a guy at the phone company was giving out mine and Nicola's numbers."

The scare has prompted Cheryl and her Girls Aloud pals - Nicola, 21, Kimberley Walsh, 24, Nadine Coyle, 21 and Sarah Harding, 24 - to beef up their personal security. Kimberley said: "We do take security out with us. You feel better if somebody's there on a night out. If all of us are together we can be targeted."

The band are determined to carry on as normal as they launch their Christmas single, a cover of Tiffany's cult 80s hit I Think We're Alone Now.

Their video for the track will be premiered on Cheryl's new network 3 Mobile.

DRUGS BOSS £1m ELEPHANT MAN £0 Fat bonus insult to victims of trial

THE boss of the "Elephant Man" drug trial firm has had a £1million bonus – and the victims haven't had a penny.

While the six men wait for compensation, Parexel chief executive Josef H von Rickenbach, 51, has received the huge sum in the form of cash, a pay rise and shares.

Four other senior executives on Parexel's board also received payouts.

The bumper deal has been branded "an insult" by one lawyer acting for the doomed experiment's volunteers.

Injected

Apart from a £10,000 interim payment in March, the men – who suffered organ failure – have had no compensation.

After being injected with an experimental drug six months ago at Parexel's London clinic, their heads and limbs swelled to three times the normal size.

Trainee plumber Ryan Wilson, 20, was the worst affected. Dubbed "the

by LIZZIE CATT

"Elephant Man", he had to have all his toes and several fingers amputated and spent five months in hospital.

It is feared that the men may now end up suffering from leukemia, multiple sclerosis and rheumatoid arthritis – which the drug was supposed to combat.

The new drug TGN1412 was developed by a German company. But lawyers believe that Parexel – a drug trial firm – should pay compensation because of errors that made the problems worse.

A report into the trial by the Medicines and Health Care Products Regulatory Agency said Parexel had failed to follow several procedures.

The group's lawyer Martyn Day said: "It is an insult to our clients that Mr von Rickenbach can be paid a huge bonus when my clients have not received a penny in compensation."

A spokeswoman for Parexel declined to comment.

Big Brother star fears she might have killer disease

JADE: I'M TERRIFIED I'VE GOT CANCER

ANXIOUS: Jade talks about her fears of bowel cancer

TERRIFIED Jade Goody has revealed how she faces an agonising three-week wait to find out if she has bowel cancer.

The Big Brother star fears she may have to battle the killer disease after being rushed to hospital with crippling stomach pains.

Jade, 25, now faces a tense wait following five days of hospital tests to find out if she has the disease.

She said: "The doctors haven't ruled anything out yet. I know bowel cancer is a killer and I'm worried. But I'm hoping it's not that."

Despite suffering stomach pains since childhood - which led to several hospital visits - this week is the first time she has undergone thorough examinations to try to solve the problem.

On Sunday she suffered her most excruciating pains yet after collapsing at her home in Chipping Ongar, Essex.

Boyfriend Jack Tweedy, 19, called an ambulance and she was taken to the Princess Alexandra Hospital in nearby Harlow.

The pain was so intense she had to be given morphine.

Jade said: "I often get mild stomach pains and every few months I get bad ones but this time they were the worst ever."

Tests

"The pain was atrocious and what really worried me was that blood came out when I went to the loo."

"In the past I've just had X-rays and the doctors have said they can't find anything. The pain went away after a while and I just carried on."

"For a long time it was just put down to bad constipation."

"But my mum's best friend was diagnosed with bowel cancer and I started reading about it and got really worried."

"This time the hospital decided they would do lots of tests to really try to find out the cause."

"I had scans and cameras looking inside me and they did find a blockage that was causing the pain."

"But I don't yet know why that happened. I won't find out anything more until I go back in three weeks."

"I'm young so hopefully everything will be okay. It

by ROSS KANIK and NADINE LINGE is worrying though. I stopped taking painkillers on Thursday and they kept an eye on me but the pain didn't come back so I was allowed to go home."

Jade struggled home because she was desperate to have a magical Bonfire Night with her sons by TV presenter Jeff Brazier, 27 - Bobby Jack, three, and Freddie, two.

She said: "I wanted to be at home. I really wanted to be with my children on Bonfire Night. We are going to a little fireworks display and Bobby is scared of fireworks so I want to be with him."

The BB3 star says she is determined to carry on with her life as normal.

Her mum, Jackie, 48, said she was relieved she might now find out what her problem has been.

She said: "She has had this since she was a child. Doctors put it down to constipation and told her to eat more vegetables."

"But I am a good cook and she has had lots of vegetables and they didn't get rid of the problem."

"I know she's been worried about cancer but hopefully it's not that."

Jade was rocked by another cancer scare earlier this year after abnormal results from a smear test.

And in March 2004 she was rushed to hospital with an ovarian cyst while appearing on Five's Back To Reality show.

GUY FRAUD'S NIGHT

Bonfire is scrapped for fake blaze on big screen

THOUSANDS of people celebrated their Guy Fawkes night by crowding around Britain's first virtual bonfire.

Ilfracombe Rugby Club in Devon was forced to scrap the real thing by health and safety red tape.

They haven't held a bonfire night for four years after being put off by the mountain of paperwork and regulations. But this year they opted to show a film of the blaze instead to get round the strict rules for fires at public events.

■ by BILL MARTIN

Speakers

Recorded images of a roaring real fire were projected onto a 16ft by 12ft screen. Organisers used giant heaters, lights, a smoke machine and played the sound of crackling wood on loud speakers.

Jon Powell, 36, and wife Clair, 34, right, took their children, Amy, seven, and two-year-old James. Clair said: "This was certainly a bonfire for the 21st Century. "Goodness knows what our ancestors would think of us crowded around a picture of a bonfire. They would think we were crazy. But the kids loved it."

A spokesman for the Health and Safety Executive said: "It sounds like a sensible precaution."

First review of Casino Royale

by MAZ PARTASIDES

BOND is back... and he's got Thunderballs of steel. Daniel Craig – the sixth star to step into the tux – has turned Bond into a brooding killing machine, minus all the gadgets.

The film is not due to open in cinemas across Britain until November 17. But the Daily Star got an early peek at the film.

From the credits, which slip into the stylish opening black and white scenes, to Craig's delivery of the classic:

"The name's Bond – double O seven", Casino Royale promises a lot.

It's jam-packed with car chases, jaw-dropping stunts and, of course, the hottest Bond babes ever.

In one of the most eye-watering Bond tortures ever the super spy suffers when his nether regions are badly beaten.

Bond is sent on his first ever licence to kill mission – to bust a terrorist cell.

The charming killer faces a menacing banker who funds the militants in a high stakes poker game.

But as always Bond's love life is paramount. He gets close to love interest Vesper Lynd, an agent sent to keep an eye on him, but they suffer attacks by Le Chiffre.

Favourites like Q and Money Penny have been dumped.

But Dame Judi Dench, 72, is still on board as boss lady M.

Craig, 38, is the toughest Bond yet, but purists may be sad to see him show his vulnerable side and fall for Vesper (Eva Green, 26).

She was created by Fleming more than 50 years ago, and is the only girl in his 14 books to break Bond's heart.

And here is the stunning necklace whose secret leads to Bond's undoing.

Made from twisted gold and silver chains the bling, an Algerian Loveknot, was designed to represent the old links between Bond and Vesper.

And for just £1,400 fans can snap up the real necklace from jeweller Sophie Harley.

Other scenes not to miss include the sexy entrance from Italian babe Caterina Murino, 32, who arrives in a bikini and boots, straddling a horse.

In typical fashion our hero hares around in a smart new Aston Martin, but he ends up crashing the motor.

So, with a mix of real stunts, real love and real fear Casino Royale brings the double-wow factor back to Britain's top spy films.

SAUCY: Brendan and Claire run through their salsa moves

DIRTY DANCE

Cole ordered to tone it down

★ ABBA star Bjorn Ulvaeus has told The MacDonald Brothers to wear platform shoes to survive the chop on The X Factor. The Swede, 61, who wrote hits including Voulez-Vous, told the short Scots Brian, 19, and Craig, 20: "Wear platform shoes like we did. It will enhance your stage presence."

Voulez shoes...

NAUGHTY Brendan Cole and his partner Claire King have been ordered to tone down their raunchy dance moves tonight as they're too hot for prime time telly.

The pair have been busy all week rehearsing a very sexy salsa routine in a bid to impress the judges and stay in the BBC contest.

However, when producers saw Brendan, 30, and former Emmerdale star Claire's X-rated moves they hit the panic button.

They told the pair their routines were too adult for the show, which goes out in an early evening time slot.

They have now told Brendan and Claire, 43, to tone things down.

Sexual

A show insider said: "Claire and Brendan's routine was just sizzling with sexual tension."

"The judges would have been amazed by the performance. But we thought it was too over-the-top."

"If it had been after the 9pm watershed they might have got away with it."

"But it was too near-the-knuckle so they're having to re-do the routine."

Brendan and Claire are not happy with the decision, especially as they've already had their share of rows on the show.

■ by PETER DYKE

Last weekend the former Love Island hunk was furious at the roasting he got from the judges, who include veteran Len Goodman, 61, and bitchy Craig Revel Horwood, 38.

He accused the panel of "fixing" their votes to engineer who gets evicted.

Cole blasted: "You guys are losing the plot. You cannot make up your minds."

"One of you likes it, one hates it. There's no consistency at all."

Bookies have comic Jan Ravens, 47, as 1-2 favourite for the chop tonight.

● Strictly Come Dancing is on BBC1 tonight at 8.45pm and 8.30pm.

Kel's inZane jealousy

KELLY Brook was delighted when Kate Moss failed to turn up to collect her Model of the Year gong at the British Fashion Awards.

The brunette babe, 26, was on edge at the bash at London's V&A Museum, in case clothes-horse Kate, 32, turned up and took the eye of fiancé Billy Zane, 40. Kelly said: "I know it's silly but I'd hate to share the room with her because she's the sexiest woman in the world."

Slaphead Zane can't even film romantic scenes as the jealous minx has forbidden it. She added: "If Billy had a lovely leading lady like Kate or Mischa Barton, he wouldn't get any dinner."

Kelly love, if he was dating either of those waifs - he'd never get any dinner!

DIDDY'S TRANNY SHOCKER

Pictures: WIREIMAGE.COM

Don't worry mate, she's the real deal

DIDDY isn't the only one who took the P out of himself.

The rapper formerly known as P Diddy could barely make eye contact with other giggling guests following his homoerotic experience.

And it made the poor scamp so paranoid he had to give sexy Rihanna, 18, the once-over to check there was no Adam's apple at the Press Play party.

BOOZE SORRY NOW? Diddy drowns his sorrows after his embarrassing encounter

HORRIFIED Diddy will have to change his name again after his groupie hunters mistook two ladyboys for a pair of babes.

The lothario is 37 today and wanted to celebrate with a bevy of beauties at the flash Petri Hotel in Copenhagen after the MTV European Music Awards.

So the Diddy's entourage provided some sexy booty for his grown-up cuddles along with a crate of bubbly.

Nuts

But he soon discovered that his totty team had actually netted a pair of transvestites.

It isn't clear how the rapper uncovered the dreadful truth.

But he wasn't thrilled and spent an hour going up and down the escalator with a sickly expression on his mush.

Our mole said: "Lots of people lost jobs that night. He went absolutely nuts. But the ladyboys were convincing. Even Diddy was fooled by their feminine charms to begin with."

But at least there was one man who made it obvious he was masquerading as a lady. Bo' Selecta' comic Leigh Francis, 33, dressed up as a rubber-faced Madonna, above, at the Bella Center bash.

But Leigh didn't make it quite so clear that his spoof character Avid Merriem was a comedy role. And Diddy wasn't amused when Leigh stalked him backstage and offered to do unsavoury things to the star's undercarriage.

An insider said: "Diddy tried to get security to remove Leigh because he genuinely thought he was a stalker."

They'll laugh at all this one day... we're laughing already.

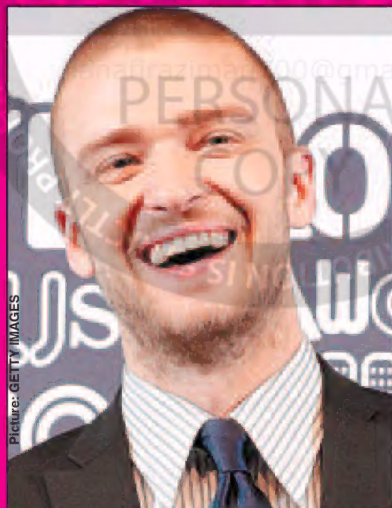

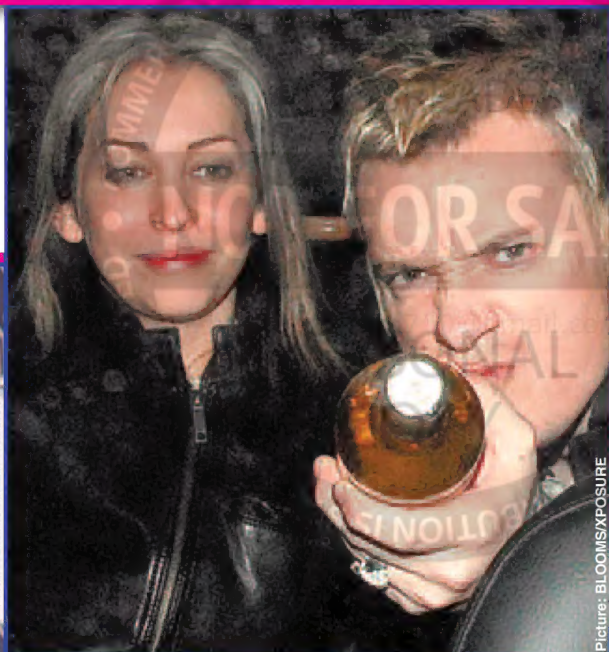

HAVE YOU GOT SOME JUICY GOSSIP FOR US?

IT'S usually a good sign that you've had enough vino when you start pointing your bottle at people and threaten to shoot them with it.

And Natalie Appleton's weary smile suggests she was aware of this, when her husband Liam Howlett, 35, relived his rebellious Prodigy days by threatening our snapper with Death by Cava.

It's not such a bad way to go, but the All Saints babe, 33, didn't let our pap find out and gently eased the bottle out of her squiffy fella's mitts.

Go out? Not on your Nelly, Justin!

WHAT a lovely pair.

We're talking about the MTV gongs collected by Justin Timberlake, 25. Though, clearly, he was thinking something similar about foxy Nelly Furtado, 28.

Trousersnake was so miffed that his lady, Cameron Diaz, refused to accompany him to the shindig that he arrived with Nelly on his arm instead.

Acne

Poor Cam, 34, was suffering from an unsavoury break-out of acne. Instead of stepping out, she hid away in her plush L'Angleterre Hotel suite, searching her Danish family tree on t'intervew.

The zits were the least of the blonde bombshell's concerns.

Her cheeky fella probably turned her spotty skin green with envy.

SPOTTED

QUICKIE..

THE name's Craig, Daniel Craig – and unlike his 007 character he has NOT got a licence to thrill.

The surprisingly nerdy star tried to work his Bond charms on Sugababes sassbucket Keisha Buchanan, 22, at MTV. Desperate Dan, 38, sprayed himself in beer and unimpressed Keisha left the soggy spy – pronto.

QUICKIE..

FORMER Keane junkie Tom Chaplin has developed a new addiction... to Juliette Lewis.

The frontman, 27, enjoyed a game of tonsil tennis with the actress-turned-rockstar, 33, at the Bella Center MTV after-party. But that was the star's only temptation.

There wasn't a whiff of Priory fodder in his rider, which consisted of Jaffa Cakes and Earl Grey Tea. Rock and roll!

QUICKIE..

KASABIAN'S Serge Pizzorno was convinced he was in Star Trek during Liam Gallagher's 34th birthday bash.

He said: "The landscape was rock formations. I felt like William Shatner when he leaves the Enterprise. I get flashbacks of singing midgets. But I've seen photos of them dancing, so they were real."

HUSH HUSH

WHICH randy rocker favoured the red lights over the limelight at the MTV Awards in Copenhagen? The scamp slipped away from the star-studded shindig to enjoy the alternative sights the city has to offer. But his face was left as red as the district he was in when he was left with an itchy reminder of his exploits.

News in brief

BOXING STAR IN DOCK

ON TRIAL: Khan

BOXER Amir Khan faces trial next April on a dangerous driving charge.

Khan, 19, who is accused of breaking a 40-year-old man's leg in a collision on a pedestrian crossing, pleaded not guilty yesterday at Bolton Crown Court.

The charge, which has a maximum sentence of two years in jail, alleges Khan "drove at speed at a crossing causing serious injury".

Gas bills up a third

HOUSEHOLD gas bills have soared by more than a third over the past year.

The average annual domestic bill has now gone up by 33.6% — hitting £510.60.

There's also been a 13.7% rise in electricity prices over the same period, pushing the average bill up to £453.24, according to a survey by JD Power & Associates.

Separate research by moneysupermarket.com found that 56% of Brits are delaying turning on their heating to save money. Nearly two-thirds would rather put on extra clothes to keep themselves warm.

RING TONE FOR CHARITY

CALL: Tony Blair

TONY BLAIR called a radio station yesterday to try to win £20,000 for a transplant charity.

The PM called in on the last day of a Virgin Radio breakfast competition to back Graham Marsh, from North Shields, Tyne-side, who has had a heart transplant.

The competition encourages people to get a celeb to call into the studio. Callers have included Liam Gallagher, 34, Mr Blair, 53, said: "I hope he wins."

Xmas deal ditched

THOUSANDS of families face a bleak Christmas after a last-gasp attempt to help victims of collapsed hamper firm Farepak failed.

The British Retail Consortium had pledged to make a "goodwill gesture" payment to Farepak customers but they admitted yesterday that the situation was too complicated to deliver a solution by Christmas.

Swindon-based Farepak ran a savings scheme in which an estimated 150,000 customers put money aside for vouchers and Christmas hampers.

Parliament yesterday called on the Serious Fraud Squad to examine the Farepak collapse.

PETE'S 'ALIEN' LIP HELL

TUMOURS: Pete

CELEB Big Brother star Pete Burns has revealed he narrowly escaped having his lips amputated after a cosmetic surgery disaster.

The 47-year-old lost his home and career and had a nervous breakdown after forking out for more than 100 operations.

Pete said: "I started to develop lumps like peas — hard, benign tumours. "It was like the movie Alien. I was deformed."

BUNG PROBE ON ACE WHO PLAYED JUST 15 MINUTES

'Agents made fortune'

DENIES ANY WRONGDOING:
Bolton's manager Sam Allardyce

MAN ON MOVE:
Fernandes
barely kicked a ball for Bolton

by TOM SAVAGE

THE football bung inquiry now centres on the transfer of a highly-paid Bolton Wanderers star who played only 15 MINUTES for the club.

Frenchman Fabrice Fernandes signed for a five-figure wage – believed to be about £10,000 a week – from Southampton in August 2005.

But he moved on again just six months later after barely kicking a ball for his club.

Agents are believed to have pocketed massive amounts of cash as he arrived – and again when he moved on.

And now the team of forensic accountants looking into dodgy transfers is understood to have requested all the relevant paperwork about the deal.

Last month the inquiry boss – former Met Police Commissioner Lord Stevens, 64 – asked for an extra month's extension to the deadline by which he was expected to complete his investigations.

Interest

He is expected to wrap up the probe into 39 transfers within the next few weeks.

Lord Stevens is also looking into the transfers to Bolton of Tal Ben Haim, 24, and Ali Al-Habsi, also 24, plus former player Hidetoshi Nakata, 29.

But the Fernandes deal is said to be causing the most interest.

Fernandes, 29, started his career at Rennes, France, before moving to Fulham in 2001, then Rangers and Southampton. He joined Bolton on a free transfer after Southampton were relegated.

A source at the south coast club said: "I don't think the agent's fee was bigger than £30,000. It made good business sense to spend £30,000 to save £300,000 in wages."

Bolton manager Sam Allardyce, 52, has been quizzed by the bung busters, but he fiercely denies any wrongdoing.

The Fernandes deal was brokered by agent Willie McKay, who says he was only paid by Southampton – which would not be a breach of football's rules.

WRONG WAY: Morris

Jody drive ban

FORMER Chelsea player Jody Morris was banned from driving yesterday after being caught going the wrong way down a one-way street while three times over the drink-drive limit.

Morris, 27, of Epsom, Surrey – who now plays for Millwall – admitted the offence.

Greenwich Magistrates' Court, south London ruled that he must be assessed to see if he has a drink problem.

He will return to court on November 8 to hear how long the ban will last.
